Contest Between Patsy Cardiff and Tally Owens at Encore Hall Last Night.

A Small Audience Entertained With Several Clever Exhibitions of the Pugilists' Art.

Counterfeit Greenbacks in Circulation Helena-An Accident to a Mining Superintendent at Elkhorn.

The sparring entertainment at Encore hall last night was a very interesting and orderly affair under the management of Dunc McDonald. Among the audience, usual serpentine capers, entertained the audience for about twenty-five minutes, exercising his muscles on the anatomy of "Dug" Tousley. The Finn brothers followed in a six round set-to which was a neat exhibition of the manly art. Frank neat exhibition of the manly art. Frank Shepley and Tom Gleason next sparred six rounds for points, and the former won after a hot contest. The score was 35 to 37. The little favorites, Kilrain and Sullivan, gave a four round exhibition which pleased the audience so well that a shower of silver rained on the little Tally Owens out in six rounds it had been changed to a contest for points. Neverthe-less it proved an interesting set-to. Both less it proved an interesting set-to. Both puglists glory in the possession of broken noses, but they have been of long standing. Cardiff has been "boozing" a good deal of late, and in his present condition an average man could liek him. In the first round, after a short exchange of courtesies, the Minneapolis man brought down his left on Owens' nose, which completely dazed the latter, and he sank to his knees. The time-keeper was compassionate, however, and after the pair had been together a minute and a half called time. This was a great relief to Owens, who was allowed a good rest. For Owens, who was allowed a good rest. For the second round Tally came up lively and scored three good raps on Cardiff's nose, terday, from the Iron Mountain, is in effect the second round Tally came up lively and scored three good raps on Cardiff's nose, which enraged the latter somewhat. Prowhich enraged the latter somewhat. Previous to this Cardiff had only used his left, but now he played for a chance and let drive his right, but Tally went into the ropes and avoided the full force of the blow. The round was in Owens' favor. blow. The round was in Owens' favor. During the next round Owens succeeded in getting in several good passes, while Cafdiff was unable to reach his man who was very nimble on his feet. A good deal of clinching characterized this round and the contest was becoming more of a slingging match. In the fourth round Cardiff reached for Owens several times with telling effect, and the latter could hardly keep his feet. The fifth round culminated into a running match. Owens seemed afraid and ran around the ring like a pedestrian on a six days' jaunt, while Cardiff tried to keep up with him, but the latter, who is bloated, could not sustain the pace. He was angry at this sort of business and did his best to hit Owens hard, but did not succeed. He stood in the center of the ring and invited Owens to step up, but the telling effect, and the latter could hardly keep his feet. The fifth round culminated into a running match.
